Supply Chains in Disruptive Times

Seminar

Wednesday 25 November 2026
18:00 - 21:00

RSVP

Join the City of London Law Society - Commercial Committee for an interactive seminar exploring how businesses can navigate increasingly complex and disrupted global supply chains hosted at Charles Russell Speechlys' London office.

Businesses involved in the retail and sale of goods continue to face significant supply chain pressures, from geopolitical instability and conflict to climate change, tariffs and sanctions. Against this backdrop, the session will consider the practical steps businesses and their advisers can take to manage these challenges, mitigate risk and maintain profitable operations.

The seminar will feature a lively, moderated panel discussion with business and industry experts, Haania Amir, Victoria Callicott and Russell Cohen, designed to encourage debate and audience participation rather than a traditional presentation format. Following brief introductions from the panellists, attendees will have the opportunity to put their questions directly to the panel and share perspectives throughout the discussion.

We hope you can join us. Please RSVP to secure your place.

If you have any questions about the event, please contact the Charles Russell Speechlys Events Team.
